Phillipe Paris-Match

Dear M. de Bausset,

We are on so thin a shoestring I regret we have no freebees.

My associate in this new book, who is also my associate in the in the James Earl Ray defense (King assassination) - he junior counsel but the one doing all the work, I the investigator - borrowed the money to pay the printer. And we have and can have no real distribution.

If it is a hell of a way, the information is out, without censorship or compromise, and I think it is of sensational content.

Interestingly for the first time with good and straight news play. No snide cracks and up to more than 40 column inches on front pages in metropolitan papers. The farthur from Washington the greater the interest.

In the past neither Paris-Match nor your friends the agents went for any of this.

Maybe that, too, is changing?

Best regards,

Sincerely,
